

JOHN BUTLER

FERNDALE, WASHINGTON

John Butler's trendsetting designs have influenced the decorative arts industry for over 2 decades. He is very prolific and creates unique and distinctive artwork using a variety of techniques and materials. A native of Washington State, Mr. Butler began his career in historic Pioneer Square where he created the multi-original category of wall decor. He moved to the town of Ferndale, Washington in the early 1990s and renovated an old dairy farm into his studios. His company, Butler Design, Inc., continues to set the standards in wall décor and has become synonymous with quality artwork. In 2009, Mr. Butler received recognition for his work in restoring a wild salmon run. His support of the environment and use of recycled materials in his artwork underlines his commitment to conservation.
